As you may have read in The Herald last summer, I teach a leadership course each year at CHS. The course, Leadership by Design, has allowed me to connect with the students at CHS on a more personal level. This school year I selected nine CHS juniors and seniors to participate in the class. The students and I conduct book studies, hold discussion/debate structured classes, and attend leadership conferences.

On October 1st we attended the Ohio High School Athletic Association Foundation's Student Leadership Conference. The conference was held in the Archie Griffin Ballroom of the Ohio Union on the beautiful campus of The Ohio State University. We heard speakers on a variety of topics such as sportsmanship, leadership, health and nutrition, and personal commitment. The speakers were nationally known individuals Harvey Alston and Rick Metzger, and former OSU student-athletes Scoonie Penn, Roy Hall, and Antonio Smith. The students were excited to attend the event along with 1,200 other high school student-athletes from around Ohio.

As always, if you have any questions on any district issues, please give me a call.

Go Tigers!
